Tutoring Experience

I've recently started tutoring IB Psychology, drawing from my own experience as a student to offer insights that are both relevant and practical. I focus on helping students understand complex psychological theories and how to apply them in essays and exams. Having just graduated, I'm well-versed in the current syllabus and exam techniques, making me particularly effective in helping students navigate the challenges of the IB program. I've already guided several students through their internal assessments, ensuring they meet the IB criteria and achieve high marks.
